Notes

The term magician is used as the most generic term available to the author. Its use includes wizards, witches, shamans, diabolists, invokers, elementalists, necromancers et al.

Only sources considered canonical have been referenced in the creation of this list.

* It is uncertain if the individual was a magician but in the author's opinion, it is most likely.

<sup>2</sup> There is some debate as to whether Miraja was the phantasmal construct of Cascal or vice versa.

<sup>5</sup> Shibaal was one name used by this Gnorl but is unlikely to be her true name due to the reserved nature of Gnorls.

<sup>7</sup> Whilst, no doubt, there was a Solimorrion II, it is debatable whether he was a magician of any note and thus, his exclusion from this list.

<sup>8</sup> Tamerlin is believed to have only been present in Talislanta for the last decade and has left little magical legacy. He has been included, however, due to the author's fondness for his numerous exploits.

<sup>10</sup> Viridian was not a true man but a simulacrum created by the great sorcerer Koraq.
